About workshop

Laboratory animal experimentation plays a vital role in advancement of biomedical research past many years. Researchers use experimental animals to learn more about health problems that affect both humans and animals and to assure the safety and efficacy of new medical treatments. So it is necessary to develop a utilitarian view by scientist especially young budding researchers toward the care and use of experimental animals. This could be achieved through scientific trainings and workshops to the researchers by integration of basic 3 R's principles and various regulations of CCSEA (Committee for Control and Supervision of Experiments on Animals). This workshop is focused on basic introduction to laboratory animals and hands on training for handling of laboratory animals for researchers who have no prior background in animal experimentation.
